PSAT scores will become available on Thursday, November 16. Students can access their scores through their CollegeBoard account. Anyone who does not have a CollegeBoard account can create one at www.collegeboard.org. Students who also provided a phone number at registration will also receive a text message notification when results are available.

How should I choose the right college?

Choosing the right college for you is important. Not only does each career path require a unique kind of degree, some require specific majors. Plus, you'll want to consider things like cost, how much independence you want, how big you want your school to be and the culture around extracurricular activities like collegiate sports.

You should visit the colleges you're interested in to see how you like them. You can take an in-person or virtual tour of the campus, talk to advisors and current students, and get a feel for the environment overall. Ask a professor if you can sit in on a class, or find a group of students to talk to about their experience there.
